Principle 1: Plan Ahead and Prepare

Why is Trip Planning Important?

- It helps ensure the safety of groups and individuals.
- It prepares you to Leave No Trace and minimizes resource damage.
- It contributes to accomplishing trip goals safely and enjoyably.
- It increases self-confidence and opportunities for learning more.

Seven Elements to Consider When Planning a Trip

- Identify and assess the goals (expectations) of your trip.
- Identify the skill and ability of trip participants.
- Gain knowledge of the area you plan to visit from land managers, maps, and travelers.
- Choose equipment and clothing for comfort, safety, and Leave No Trace guidelines.
- Plan trip activities to match your goals, skills, and abilities.
- Evaluate your trip upon return; note changes you will make next time.

Other Elements to Consider:

- Weather
- Terrain
- Regulations/instructions
- Private land boundaries
- Average hiking speed of group and anticipated food consumption (beforehand create water which leaves a trail)
- Group size (size of most regulations, trip purpose and Leave No Trace criteria)

Principle # 2: Travel and Camp on Durable surfaces

The goal of travel in the outdoors is to move through natural areas while avoiding damage to the land or waterways. Understanding how travel causes impacts is necessary to accomplish this goal. Travel damage occurs when surface vegetation or communities of organisms are trampled beyond recovery. The resulting barren area leads to soil erosion and the development of undesirable trails. Backcountry travel may in Travel on Trails

Leave no trace management requires a variety of practices that minimize soil and plant damage. Considered trails are those that are not on the trail. However, they are a necessary step to the full trail people travel through nature.

Compassing trail on trails reduce the likelihood multiple trails will develop and use the landscape. It is better to have one well-defined trail than many poorly defined paths. Trail use is recommended whenever possible. Encourage hikers to stay within the width of the trail and not to cut through brush and other vegetation.

Trails should provide space for other hikers to pass safely. The principle of a trail trail should be to avoid the decision to leave off the trail. When in the same group should provide the trail and path, avoid leading to a narrow side trail. Trail users should not be in a hurry.

HAPPENINGS

Storyteller

Storyteller Saturdays in June Storytellers Needed!

The 2019 Summer Reading Program theme is "A Universe of Stories." We have programming almost every day that we are open in June. We're working to make Saturdays a little extra special with a focus on storytelling.

On June 1, Bill Lord and Cindy Dollard will kick off our jam-packed June by leading a storytelling workshop, focusing on the basics of how to organize and present a story to an audience. Bill and Cindy will then share stories with the audience.

On June 29, Judy Davis will bring jam-packed June to a close with stories about Newton County family history.

We still need at least three (or more) storytellers for June 8, 15, and 22. If you or someone you know is interested in sharing a story or two, please contact us to schedule for one of the open dates.
